

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Polar Systems Announces Launch of PolarStar Network Services

Network management services keep clients' networks secure and productive for a set fee

Portland, OR -- September 17, 2007: Polar Systems, Inc., a provider of information technology (IT) services and application software to companies and not-for-profit organizations in northwestern Oregon and southwest Washington, announces PolarStar, a new network service offering that protects and enhances the value of customers' networks.

PolarStar combines state-of-the art network monitoring and communications technology with a well-trained, experienced staff that anticipates and corrects network problems before they occur to keep clients' networks running smoothly.

"For one monthly fee, the PolarStar network service eliminates our clients' concerns over network risks, unexpected downtime, and unpredictable expenses," said Tim Tragesser, Polar Systems Business Development Manager. "Our clients have consistently found that PolarStar not only makes economic sense by costing less than hiring incremental IT resources inside, they get access to a base of technology and expertise that would be hard to build internally."

Unlike information technology service firms that focus on responding to network failures, PolarStar is a proactive consulting service providing vigilance over network performance, keeping software current and exposing hardware and software weaknesses and external threats before they get the chance to cripple clients' ability to conduct business.

For more information, visit polarstar.polarsystems.com.

About Polar Systems, Inc.:

Polar Systems, Inc., founded in 1981, has as its clients one of the largest installed bases of local and wide area networks in Oregon & SW Washington. The company's diverse client list includes many of the best-known companies and government agencies in the area. Polar Systems is a Microsoft Gold Partner and is a charter member of the Microsoft Certified Partner program.

Press Contact:

Bob Patterson
MKTX, Inc.
Ph: 503-646-6589
bobp@mktx.com